FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE: 1 April 2012

Join the Raleigh Coin Club in Celebrating 2013 National Coin Week, April 21-27

As part of its celebration of the 90th annual National Coin Week (April 21-27, 2013) and the 100th anniversary of the US Buffalo/Indian Head nickel, the Raleigh Coin Club (RCC) will be hosting a program titled "Native Americans on US Coins and Paper Money" at the Wake County North Regional Library in Raleigh.

The use of Native American imagery on US coins and paper money dates back to the mid-1800s and continues to the present day – from the early "Indian Head" cents to today's Native American dollar coin series. A speaker from the RCC will be on hand to present a visual tour of the various symbolic and realistic depictions of Native Americans on US money and medals; examples of many of the issues will also be on display.

The program is free and open to the general public. Complimentary light refreshments will be available.
